WHY MEDIATION TRAINING?

Throughout the country a new awareness has emerged that the courthouse is not the best or only place for people to go for help when they are in conflict. Individuals, families and organizations in dispute are now turning to mediation as an alternative to the adversarial legal process.

Ohio courts are frequently referring disputing parties to mediation as a less expensive and less time-consuming alternative to litigation.

As more individuals and institutions become aware of the advantages of mediation, many professionals are recognizing the benefits of expanding their career base to include conflict resolution services such as mediation.

ABOUT THE PRESENTER

Shelley Whalen – Since 1988 Shelley has been the Executive Director of Community Mediation Services of Central Ohio (CMS), a private, non profit conflict management resource center located in Columbus. During her tenure at CMS Shelley has successfully mediated hundreds of disputes, including extremely complex cases involving government officials, fortune 500 companies, entire neighborhoods and school districts. She was one of the original members of the Franklin County Domestic Relations Court Mediation Program Development Task Force and is a former President of the Ohio Mediation Association.

WHAT YOU WILL LEARN

Basic Mediation Training includes:

- How to help disputants resolve a broad range of conflicts, including those occurring in the family, workplace and community
- Criteria/strategies for determining whether mediation is appropriate for particular cases/disputants
- How to effectively prepare disputants to meaningfully participate in mediation
- The origins and dynamics of conflict
- The three critical pieces of information about a dispute a mediator must identify in order to facilitate the resolution of any conflict
- The seven stages through which every mediation passes, and how to guide disputants through each
- Mediator ethics
- How to help disputants effectively manage their emotions
- How to draft disputants' agreements

Domestic Mediation Training (40 Hours) includes:

- How to help couples resolve divorce/separation related issues in a way that meets their needs and those of their children
- The origins and dynamics of domestic conflict
- The “myths” about divorce and how they impede the healthy resolution of domestic conflict
- How the role of a domestic mediator differs from the role of a legal advocate or family counselor
- The psychological impact of divorce on adults and children and the implications for mediation
- Ohio domestic relations law and its relevance to the mediation process
- How to help couples plan to cooperatively parent their children
- How to help couples divide marital assets and liabilities equitably
- How to help couples arrange to maintain two financially stable households after divorce
